Dear Parent/Carer

As we come to the end of formally taught English lessons, I am writing to ask for your help in re-filling the English department's cupboards with set texts. It seems that no matter how hard we try, each year we lose a number of texts and have to replenish them for the following year group at considerable cost. Please could you ask your son or daughter to check for any of the texts listed below that might be lurking among their revision notes and for these to be returned to an English teacher at the beginning of the relevant exam or dropped in at my office?

- The History Boys
- Frankenstein
- A Christmas Carol
- An Inspector Calls

This list is not exhaustive as students may have borrowed texts earlier in their time at St John Fisher or have borrowed a related text more recently to read around their own set text. We would be enormously grateful for any book that finds its way back to us.

Having struck such a pleading tone, if there are any fiction books that your son or daughter has on their shelf that may require removal in order to accommodate huge sixth form lever arch files, we would also be very grateful for the opportunity to broaden the range of books that we can offer from our classroom shelves during reading periods. If you have any such books in good condition, please send them in via the same routes.

My sincerest thanks for your continued support of the English department and the school,

Mr C. Kilby
Head of English
